FOREWORD

This bibliography testifies to the Spinoza renaissance in the seventies. The remarkable output of more than two thousand titles extending over a period of only thirteen years, indicates that there exists a lively interest in Spinoza nowadays. In the last decade scholars equipped with different methods of investigation and coming from different philosophical schools set out to analyse the ideas of the Dutch Jewish philosopher and tried to evaluate them in the context of contemporary philosophical discussions. As far as we can see now, this is only the beginning of the renewal of interest in Spinoza studies. New systematic inquiries are forthcoming and for that reason bibliographies will never be complete.

We all know from experience how important bibliographies are for the study of a certain philosopher. And this is especially true for the study of Spinoza because his philosophy covers so broad a field.

The growing interest in Spinoza made it necessary to bring out this bibliography soon after the works of Wetlesen, Préposiet and others. The large number of items proves its usefulness!

This work of two lecturers at the University of Groningen, H.J. Siebrand and C.A. Westerveen, and of our colleague on the board of the Spinoza House Society, Th. van der Werf, shows that today there are many friends of Spinoza all over the world. We hope that they will profit from this work and will be stimulated by it.

INTRODUCTION

This bibliography covering the years 1971 through 1983 presents a continuation of the bibliographical activities of Wetlesen and Préposiet. Publication was deemed highly desirable particularly (but not only) because of the many writings in the field of Spinoza studies which appeared in the wake of the commemorations of 1977 and 1982. It is important that this bibliographical material is readily available for the sake of furthering Spinoza scholarship.

Prior to drawing up this inventory of publications about Spinoza we decided that though a critical attitude on our part was to be a guiding principle, no criteria were to be imposed in regard to the scholarly merits of any of these writings.

Although this bibliography is not limited in a geographical sense we were somewhat restricted by the fact that we could only utilize sources accessible in The Netherlands; but we have strived for an exhaustive use of these sources.

Besides books and articles in learned journals, articles in daily papers and weeklies and signed entries in encyclopedias are also included. The articles in daily papers and weeklies deal for the most part with the commemorations mentioned above. The Proceedings of two Spinoza symposia, the one in Urbino (1982) and the one in Fontenay-aux-Roses (1983), are not yet published but the papers that were read there have been included as pre-prints. Special attention has been paid to doctoral dissertations. Titles of books reprinted in the period we cover are inserted with the date of the first edition given as well. As far as possible books and articles of a general nature have been annotated as to clearly indicate how they relate to Spinoza.

The result (apart from about 400 reviews of books on Spinoza) is a total of 2200 titles. As a kind of an extra a list has been compiled of doctoral theses that appeared in the United States during the period from 1893 till 1970.

Giving a survey of the sources that were used would far extend beyond the boundaries of a brief introduction; it could easily result in yet another bibliography. It would at any rate include (besides the general, national bibliographies) the 'Spinoza' bibliographies which in the present compilation are to be found under the heading 'Bibliographies'.

This book consists of two main parts, one arranged in alphabetical order, the other in systematic order, preceded by a listing of text-editions. In the alphabetical part entries by the same author are listed in chronological order.

Names of authors are entered under the prefixes (e.g. De Souza Chaui; Van Suchtelen) and double names under the first surname (e.g. Giancotti Boscherini). Reviews are mentioned in the annotations to the works reviewed, while a reference is inserted under the name of the author of the review. Names of editors, co-authors and, in the case of text-editions, the translators are also referred to.

With respect to the systematic heading it should be mentioned that a number of books and articles could not be judged as to the contents; in other words, in these cases we had to rely entirely on the title.

This bibliography also contains an index of articles in journals and a list of 'special issues' (of journals) devoted to Spinoza. The articles listed are compiled from about 400 journals in all.

Finally, we wish to extend our gratitude to all those who, in whatever way, have helped us in making this work possible.
